The term, 'the world is your oyster,' has never been so true.

With numerous departures monthly worldwide, there is an itinerary for everyone.

With some destinations being open all year – South Pacific, Mexico and Hawaii.

With some being seasonal – Alaska, Baltic, and Antarctica – planning the right cruise in the right season is important.

Avoiding the crowds in high season can ease the congestion in some of the most travelled cities such as Barcelona and Venice.

Taking advantage of a repositioning cruise as it ends one regional season and start another can be a great way to see out of the way places and also have the relaxing sea days to enjoy the ship and plan that next trip

Shore tours, transfers and insurance are all a part of a total package.
